Welcome to the beautiful City of Tomah! By spending a small amount of time here, you'll learn that Tomah is a beautiful place to live and visit. Whether you're here to visit family and friends, or our Amish and Cranberry tours, Tomah warmly welcomes you.

While you're here, be sure to visit our restaurants, parks, and downtown. Stroll our walking trail or stop by our Visitors Center to gather information about area tours and events. Our lodging partners will keep you comfortable should you decide to stay an extra day or two to explore our area.

If you've found us on the map, you already know how conveniently located Tomah is to many major cities in the mid-west. Only 1.5 hours to Madison, 2.5 hours from Minneapolis and Milwaukee, and 4 hours from Chicago, Tomah is a great spot to hold business meetings, family reunions, and retreats. We have the location and activities for a perfect visit.

The Guide in your hand is brought to you by our dynamic, local businesses who have invested in Tomah. We are proud to call Tomah home and hope that you like what you see. While this Guide is full of information for those just visiting, we have included relocation information, if you decide to stay a little longer.

Thank you for visiting Tomah. Whether you stay a little while, or a little while longer, we welcome you and hope you enjoy our town as much as we do!

HISTORY OF OUR BUILDING

The Tomah Chamber & Visitors Center helps to promote pivotal community events and cultivate our community and businesses. We do this by partnering with businesses in the area and working with our municipality and residents.

Years ago, we recognized that the location we were in no longer met our needs, so we began exploring options to relocate. In 2015, around the timeframe in which we were searching for a new home, the City of Tomah approached us with an opportunity that we could not pass up. The DNR had recently announced to the City of Tomah they would be vacating the 1930s DNR Ranger Station located at 310. N. Superior Ave. The building was of the utmost interest to us. Not only was the location ideal, but the historical nature of the building provided significant value to meet our purpose and needs.

The DNR Ranger Station was constructed in the 1930s, and we recognized it would present a significant challenge to renovate; however, the Tomah Chamber & Visitors Center was willing to undertake this challenge. We began working with an architect in 2015 and began renovations in 2016.

As we considered renovation plans, we wanted to make sure the building design preserved Tomah's history and the original intention of the building, a DNR Ranger Station. The building needed to tell people that this is a Chamber of Commerce: serving, supporting, and advocating for the local business community, as well as a Convention & Visitors Bureau: Working to increase tourism and promote Tomah as a destination.

We did just that. The renovation took about one year, and upon completion, the Tomah Chamber & Visitors Center relocated to its new home in June of 2017.

We are proud of our home, which is visited daily by both residents and visitors. We are fortunate to serve as the information beacon of all things Tomah and look forward to continue executing on our scope of work by fostering community involvement and cultivating a business environment that will ensure Tomah's growth.

History OF TOMAH

In the spring of 1856, two men climbed to a knoll in the Lemonweir Valley and looked out over the land. Scattered around them were a few log cabins belonging to the first pioneers into this wilderness known as Wisconsin. All around them lay the natural meadows which, until two years before, few white men had seen.

These men were Robert E. Gillett and his son, Robert A. Gillett, and they were planning the city they wanted to lay out on this site. As they planned, they considered a name for the town they visualized. There was no local history on which to draw, for the valley had known no Indian village, nor battlefield. The only link between this area and the past was a great Indian Chief, named Tomah.

The men had heard that Chief Tomah was strong in character and had high ideals. The story of his life appealed to them; so, they would call the city they were planning “Tomah.” In the year of 1856, enough settlers had come to warrant creating the “Township of Tomah.”

Two years later, Mr. Gillett saw his dream come true. The village of Tomah was incorporated, though its charter was not granted until several years later. In that same year of 1858, the long-awaited railroad finally reached the newly incorporated village. The “Great Land Grant Road” had been determined, and the village knew it would be the junction point of two of the greatest railroads in the state.

With deep emotion, the villagers greeted the first trains that steamed into town. Those trains meant access to new markets, goods from the east, and contact with friends and families they had left behind. Gone were the days of wondering what was happening outside their quaint town of Tomah.

OUR CULTURE

Besides being a great place to visit, Tomah is also a fantastic place to live. Tomah residents are known as fun, compassionate and energetic. We offer many employment opportunities and a great quality of life. As an added bonus, our excellent school system and diverse, award-winning medical facilities are first class.

The Tomah Farmers Market has been a staple in the Tomah community for many years. It provides local farmers and artists a beautiful, lively place to sell their locally grown and locally produced goods.

Tomah community members, and visitors alike, head down to Gillett Park (on the south end of Superior Ave) to peruse local vendors' booths every Wednesday and Saturday from the beginning of May to the end of October. The market runs on Wednesdays from noon-6pm and on Saturdays from 7am-1pm.

At the Farmers Market, you can find almost any seasonal produce that can be grown in Wisconsin! You can also find many goods made by local artists while venturing around the market. Every week vendors are changing the products they bring, so be sure to check back often to see what's new.

A few members from our Amish community also partake in selling at the market. They sell hand-woven baskets, quilts, pies, canned goods, produce, and much more.

Shopping at the Farmers Market helps you connect with the Tomah community. It also lets you try produce and products you may not find at your local grocery store. So, join us at the Tomah Farmers Market. We promise you won't be disappointed!

Cranberry Tour

Did you know Wisconsin is the leading producer of cranberries in the world's supply of cranberries are grown on 250 Wisconsin family farms. 1 fruit crop, generating $1 billion in economic revenue and 4,000 jobs.

world? More than half of the Cranberries are Wisconsin's No.

not trespass onto cranberry marshes.

- Cranberry Marshes
- Cranberry Resources
- Sphagnum Moss Drying
- Aronia Planting
- Explained Route

Native to the marshlands of central and northern Wisconsin, Native Americans harvested wild cranberries for centuries. Commercial cranberry production in Wisconsin began in the 1850s.

Today cranberries are grown in 20 of Wisconsin's 72 counties, but the largest concentration of growers is in the Tomah/Warrens/Wisconsin Rapids area.

The most exciting time of the year in Cranberry Country is harvest season, which typically begins in mid-September and runs through October.

Contrary to what most people believe, cranberries do not grow in water. Cranberry beds are flooded at harvest because cranberries contain four tiny air pockets and will float. Harvesting methods vary depending on whether the crop will be sold as fresh fruit or turned into processed products like juice, sauce and dried cranberries.

Another beautiful time to visit is when the cranberry vines are in bloom, which - depending on Mother Nature – happens from late June into early July. A great opportunity to see the tiny pink blossoms up close is on Cranberry Blossom Day. The event is hosted annually by Wetherby Cranberry Company on the last Saturday of June.

The Wetherby marsh also hosts marsh tours during the annual Warrens Harvest Day Celebration on the first Saturday of October. Along with a marsh tour, visitors can pull on hip boots and have their photo taken standing among floating cranberries. For details on those two events, visit their website at www.freshcranberries.com.

But you can tour Cranberry Country any time you're visiting the Tomah area. We suggest starting – or ending – your tour at the Wisconsin Cranberry Discovery Center in downtown Warrens. From Tomah take Superior Avenue/ Highway 12 north to County Hwy O (about 6 miles from downtown Tomah). Turn right onto Hwy O and travel about 4 miles to Warrens.

Housed in a historic cranberry warehouse building, the Cranberry Discovery Center features an interactive exhibit hall, gift shop offering Wisconsin-made cranberry products and old-fashioned ice cream parlor serving cranberry ice cream. The Center's hours vary by season, so check their website at www.discovercranberries.com for current hours.

Our suggested tour route is 22.5 miles, so you'll want to allow about one hour to see all the sights. The route will take you past two dozen cranberry marshes, but not all are visible from the road. We've listed information for those marshes that have roadside signs to help you pinpoint your location.

Starting from the Cranberry Discovery Center, travel across the train tracks on Main Street and turn right onto County Hwy EW. As you leave Warrens, you'll see the sign for Gebhardt Cranberry Marsh/Whiskey Creek Cranberry on your right. This marsh was started in 1968, making it one of the newer marshes you'll see on the tour. Many of the marshes are 100 years old or older.

You'll travel about 2 miles down EW before you will see the sign on the right for the Russell Rezin & Son Cranberry Marsh, which celebrated its centennial in 1918. As you pass by the cranberry reservoirs or ponds bordering the road, look for bald eagles, trumpeter swans, loons and other waterfowl. Cranberry marshes also provide habitat for sandhill cranes, whitetail deer, muskrats, otters, coyotes, wolves and other wildlife.

Past the ponds you'll find more cranberry beds belonging to the Rezin marsh along both sides of the road.

Many cranberry marshes in our area are multi-generation operations. We have families who have been growing cranberries for five, six and even seven generations, including family members of the James Potter Cranberry Marsh, which is the next marsh on your right.

Ahead on the left is Potter Cranberry Company. Established in 1871 and owned by the Potter family since 1912, the marsh is one of the oldest in the Warrens area.

Continuing on take a right on to Auger Road to see Wetherby Cranberry Company. This marsh is owned by the Van Wychen family, who produce their own cranberry wine and sell fresh cranberries in season. Third-generation cranberry grower Nodji Van Wychen also offers tours by appointment for a fee.

When departing from Wetherby Cranberry, turn right on Hwy EW and then left on Augusta Road. Here you can get a close-up view of the Potter Cranberry Company marsh. On the right are sections that are being renovated. The 12 original beds are being converted into two 15-acre beds. The oldest beds on the left were planted in 1928 and are still producing cranberries 90 years later.

Stay on Augusta Road until it intersects with Crampton Road where Hancock Brothers has a sphagnum moss processing facility. Wisconsin is the only state in the U.S. to commercially harvest sphagnum moss. You may see sphagnum moss spread out on the sand to dry before it is packaged and sold to garden centers and plant nurseries. The long-fibered moss holds 20 times its weight in water, making it invaluable for keeping nursery stock alive in shipment.

At the intersection of Crampton and Beltz Road is a sign for Beltz Cranberry Company owned by the Steve and Betty Gehhardt family. Some of the Ocean Spray commercials featuring the two comical cranberry growers were filmed on the Gebhardt marsh.

Continue east on Crampton Road and on the left you'll see a sign for Gebhardt LLC, also owned by the Gehbardt family. Before being planted to cranberries in the 1990s, a mint farm operated in this area. The peppermint oil was extracted for use in flavoring candies, toothpaste and other products.

Crampton Road intersects with county Hwy HH. The marsh sign is a few yards to the right, but directly in front of you is QRS&M Cranberry Company. This cranberry marsh was started in 1877. Prior to that the sawmill community of Chaplin was located on this property.

Turn left on to Hwy HH. As you head west on HH, you will see a sign on the right for Farmland Management's Jackson-Meadow Valley Marsh. Old-timers still call this the Case Marsh. Russel Case purchased government land in 1876 that had wild cranberries growing on it. The marsh stayed in the Case family until the death of Robert "Bob" Case - Russel's grandson - in 1975.

Bob Case was an inventor and built one of the first mechanized cranberry pickers. For a time, Bob had his workshop in Union Cranberry Company warehouse that now houses the Wisconsin Cranberry Discovery Center. One of Bob's early raking machines is on display in the museum.

The next sign you'll see - also on the right - is for Scott Cranberry's East Marsh. Also started in the 1870s, the marsh was purchased in 1918 by Judge John Stevens and settled on by his daughter and son-in-law Genevieve and Archibald Scott in 1921. The marsh has been in continuous operation by members of the Stevens/Scott family since that time and is currently a fifth-generation family farm.

One mile further east on HH is JR Nemitz Cranberry Company, which has beds located on both sides of the road. The Nemitz family diversified their farm in 2014 by planting Aronia which - like cranberries - are native to North America. Aronia berries are small, dark purple berries that have become popular among health-conscious consumers. The family has 24,000 bushes on 20 acres, which are harvested in late August.

Turn left on to Hwy O and travel three miles - passing by additional cranberry marshes - back to the village of Warrens and the start of your tour.

Two more miles down HH is Walworth Cranberry LLC. The Walworth, Nemitz and Wetherby marshes were all part of the Union Cranberry Company at one time. When the owner retired, he offered his three marsh managers the opportunity to buy the properties they managed. Charles Walworth and his son Dale purchased the Central Marsh, as it had been known, in 1973.

Curious about cranberries?

Visit our historic building in Warrens to discover more about the history of these crimson gems, along with their many uses of today!

Don't forget to visit Wetherby Cranberry Co. for Cranberry Blossom Day on the last Saturday June and Cranberry Harvest Day on the first Saturday in October.

The Amish chose to settle in the Tomah area for the rich and fertile farmland, low real estate prices, and the lay of the land. Also, because this area was far from a city of any size, which might influence their youth to the worldly ways - and yet, close enough to a small town that has the exact resources they need such as a bank, post office, grocery/hardware store, or a feed mill.

DOWN A COUNTRY ROAD

12651 WI-33, Cashton, WI 54619

Amish families in the area have increased in population throughout the past years. Among the marshlands filled with cranberries in central Wisconsin live over 200 Amish families. The average family will have as many as 10-14 children.

The Amish community consists of several church districts. Each church district is led by a Bishop, two Ministers, and a Deacon. Most Amish are farmers, but many have taken up a craft or trade to make their living.

The Amish way of life revolves around the family and their church community. Quilting, bees, barn raisings, and Sunday services in the home are just a few of the ways.

The Amish school consists of all eight grades taught in a one-room schoolhouse. The children start school at age six and will usually complete all of their schoolings by the time they are 13 or 14. Higher education is not allowed, as this might lead to losing them to the English culture. The three basics: Reading, writing, and arithmetic are the primary curriculum required in Amish schools.

While on your driving tour of the Amish countryside south of Tomah, please use caution and watch out for horse-drawn buggies that travel slowly. Sundays are especially heavily trafficked due to Amish families attending religious services or visiting relatives.

Amish homes, typically painted white with windmills, are easily identified by their lack of modern machinery. Also, take note of the "additions" to their homes, which generally means a son has married, and the family now needs an additional room for a new couple.

Tomah is Home

I work in a large city 45 miles west of Tomah. Recently, my wife Brenda was hired by a company in the same city. Many of our friends and family automatically assumed we would sell our house here in Tomah and move closer to reside closer to our workplaces. Two things keep that from happening: 1) We have a wonderful church family at St. Paul Evangelical Lutheran Church; 2) Tomah is an amazingly comfortable and enjoyable place to live. I could not imagine calling any place but Tomah our home."
